THE AILEY SCHOOL History and Mission

HISTORY OF THE AILEY SCHOOL

The Ailey School is the official school of the world renowned Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater. In 1969, Alvin Ailey founded The Ailey School (then called the Alvin Ailey American Dance Center) in Brooklyn, New York, with an initial enrollment of 125 students. In 1970, Mr. Ailey joined forces with Pearl Lang to establish the American Dance Center in Manhattan. Today, under the direction of Tracy Inman and Melanie Person, a prestigious faculty trains approximately 3,500 students annually, offering more than 160 classes weekly.

A junior performing company, Ailey II, is the resident company of The Ailey School. Ailey School students are often invited to join Ailey II by its Artistic Director. Other students pursue successful careers as performers, choreographers and teachers with professional dance companies in the United States and abroad. Many appear in film, on television and on the Broadway stage. Some also choose to become health practitioners, teachers or to work in the corporate world, and they support dance as patrons and members of the audience.

Located in New York City's Theater District, The Ailey School houses 12 spacious studios, a fully equipped theater with 295 seats, student and faculty lounges, dressing rooms, a library, conference rooms, an Ailey boutique and administrative offices. Students are drawn from every part of the world, representing a diversity of racial and ethnic backgrounds. Unique among dance academies, The Ailey School offers an accredited and comprehensive curriculum including ballet, Dunham, Graham-based modern, Horton, jazz, tap and West African dance. The school rounds out its curriculum with classes in barre a terre, body conditioning, yoga, Gyrokinesis®, partnering, repertory, improvisation, dance composition, dance history, music and theater arts, and performance opportunities.

Guided by the belief that dance instruction should be made available to everyone, The Ailey School has designed a number of programs which offer training at all levels. The Ailey School offers the following Junior Division programs to its students:

- ★ First Steps
- ★ Bounding Boys
- ★ Ailey Athletic Boys Dance
